6

Carl used to work as a reporter. He wants a job which involves travelling and reporting on different countries. He does not mind spending long periods abroad and he would like to travel.

7

Debbie has a degree in Zoology and wants a job where she can use her knowledge and also travel. She works well with other people and speaks German. She is not keen on sports.

8

Peter is looking for an exciting summer job where he can learn new skills. He was trained as a deep-sea diver and has taken groups of children and adults on diving trips.

9

Jackie wants a job that will allow her to spend several months abroad. She can hold a simple conversation in Spanish and French. She used to take London tourists sightseeing in her own car.

10

Claire is a tourist guide, but now she has a small child and she wants a job which does not require her to travel abroad. She speaks Spanish and she is willing to work at weekends.

The London Job Centre

DO YOU WANT AN EXCITING JOB? CHECK THESE GREAT OPPORTUNITIES ...

- A Wildlife: The world is an unexplored territory. You need to know more about its plants, animals, birds, insects, fish, and other creatures. You must have a good knowledge of animals, be a real team player and be able to speak at least one foreign language. No previous experience as a tour guide needed. The job starts in three weeks' time.
- F Globe Trotter: Looking for two people with an excellent command of Spanish and English to accompany groups of English-speaking tourists on whale-watching trips to South America. These must be fit and good swimmers. These are one-year jobs starting next summer.

- G Wildside Magazine: Is looking for a writer to cover Central and West Africa, starting immediately. The job is mostly based in our central office, but you must be willing to spend at least two weeks a month travelling. Previous experience of journalism is essential.
- H Karoo Expeditions: Is looking for leaders for its Latin American tours. You must have a driving licence and a basic knowledge of Spanish. The job will involve a lot of travelling, with one week per year in Central and South America. Extensive travel experience is not essential.

- D Life of Adventure Publishers: urgently needs a reporter with experience of deep-sea photography to join its team in Jamaica. The job is for the summer and will give you training in climbing and trekking, but you must have excellent swimming and some experience of working with different age groups is essential.

THE ISLAND OF JURA

The island of Jura is one of Scotland's best-kept secrets - a beautiful island where you can get away from it all. The quiet life of Jura would be hard to find elsewhere. It is a beautiful island of fun and good food. However, if you want an active holiday there are many things for you to see and do.

Climb the hills

If you enjoy walking and hill climbing, for Jura is a beautiful island of hills of various heights. The highest hill of Jura, which rises to more than 800 metres, should be on your list. There are many walking paths about seven hours, strong walking boots and an early start is essential for a safe return before dark.

Enjoy the wildlife

Beautiful birds, seals, golden eagles... From the moment you get off the Jura you will see many wild animals. You will see deer, hares, rabbits and many other plants along the shore. In fact, you would do well to have a camera with you. There are many opportunities to get those special once-in-a-lifetime photographs.

Visit the Ardsin Gardens

There are seven all year round. Entry is through the main gate, where you will find an information board and a box with maps and some guides to fit the two visitors.

Where to stay and shop

The island has only one large hotel. The Jura Hotel offers a friendly atmosphere and an excellent restaurant. There are also several guest houses and cottages. You can expect to pay in other parts of Scotland. For camp on Jura, the hotel field is excellent, but the back of the hotel is excellent.

Just opposite the hotel is 'Jura Store'. From the outside it looks like any other shop, but inside you will be surprised at the selection of goods on offer - from fresh produce to hand-knitted woollen goods. There are also several bookshops. There are many opportunities to get those special once-in-a-lifetime photographs.

Why not stay a few days in Jura? You will come away feeling refreshed, invigorated and planning your next visit...
